It's the Return of Vern!

Look! It's Vern! Vern is back in the city with the sounds of the new Michael Bard. Vern is back, the great old man's performance that had the top a star again through the history books.

If you missed Vern Monday, you'll get a second chance tonight at 10:30 pm when they return to the stage for another round of their act.

Michael has been part of the winter Canadian music scene for the past two decades on professional guitar with the iconic Vancouver-based Blueberry Jack. In 2002, he returned to his roots and established a reputation as a high energy local folk musician who took the folk of the coast.

He can't help himself to an evening mix of traditional country, bluegrass and all the folk favorites - plus, a smattering of some of the great's original compositions.

Cool Curling Qualifiers

The Curling Club continues to host the 2010 Ford World Women's Curling Championship in North Park. The event is one of the city's most popular and is open to women of all ages.

You'll have time to get on the water. Just get out on the water to enjoy a beautiful sunset. The event is free and open to all.

Tuesday's event starts at 7:30 pm and features a performance by the band of the Curling Club.

One More Taste...

You have one more chance for "A Taste of South Coast" - featuring a variety of local artists and their talents in the region's cultural heritage.

The event takes place Sunday at the South Coast Cultural Centre. It is free and open to all. Tickets are $10. It will be followed by more sessions in the Curling Club's other Information Booth.

It takes place between 10:30 am and 1:30 pm with a full afternoon dinner including potluck, coffee and tea, live music and a performance by the band of the Curling Club. Tickets are $10. It will be followed by more sessions in the Curling Club's other Information Booth.

Take a Free Ride

Complimentary shuttle service provided by the Information Booth of the Curling Club offers transportation between the Curling Club and downtown throughout the city.

The complete schedule is available at the Information Booth.

Today to Thursday, bus runs begin at the Credit Union iPLEX at the bottom of the hour from 7:30 am to 1:00 am.
